ڑ

H ڑ ड़ ṛa: The fifteenth letter of the Hindūstānī alphabet. Its sound differs from that of ر r by being uttered with the tip of the tongue turned upwards towards the roof of the mouth; and closely resembles that of ḍa, with which it is often interchanged. In reckoning by abjad it counts 200, the same as re. It rarely (in Hindī never) occurs as the first letter of a word, there being, so far as we have been able to discover, only one solitary vocable under this class.
H ڑوڑا ṛoṛā, s.m.=روڑا roṛā, q.v. H ز ze (called zā'e moh̤mala or zā'e manqūṭa) is the sixteenth letter of the Hindūstānī alphabet (the thirteenth of the Persian, and the eleventh of the Arabic), and has the sound of the English z. It has no corresponding letter in the Nāgarī alphabet, in which it is represented by ज़, or more commonly changed to ज j, as roj for roz, jor for zor, &c. In reckoning by abjad, it stands for 7; and in almanacs, it represents Saturday, and the sign Scorpio.
